BRYAN PRAISES OPEN FORUM OF ARMS PARLEY

Points to What Might Have Happened if Secret Sessions Held

BRITAIN IS PRAISED

Reason Will be Substituted for Force in All Things in Future

By WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN
(Copyright, 1921, by United Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Only two sessions so far and yet they prove the incalculable benefit of open public discussion. Suppose Secretary Hughes had made his proposal at a secret council and then waited for a confidential reply from other nations—how different the situation would be.

The delegates would be involved in a mass of details and in a confusion of pleas, replies, rejoinders and surrejoinders, etc. As it is, the United States took the world into its confidence and the world gave an affirmative answer that has jarred secret diplomacy off its throne.

Mr. Balfour set forth Great Britain's answer as to her need of a navy and it is well that the world should know that view. Never before has Great Britain been able to lay her arguments before so many people at one time.

If war is to continue, a large navy is necessary to the very existence of the British empire. The word "large" is a relative term. When all navies were small, a little navy might be large enough for Great Britain, but when several nations build big navies, the biggest navy of all becomes an unbearable burden and Great Britain may well desire the substitution of a different policy.

The open meeting also gave Japan a chance to deny before the world the false accusations that have been made against her by those unfriendly. When has Japan ever been able to lay her case before so many people? To obtain such a hearing is worth to her all the expenses which her attendance may incur. She answers her accusers with the assertion that she has never insisted upon a navy equal to Great Britain or the United States; that she has never contemplated a navy for offensive purposes and that she heartily concurs in the proposal that sweeping reduction be made.

Here in a forum that speaks to the world these questions are going to be thought out and fought out. It is impossible that the results shall be otherwise than good. Frankness triumphed in the beginning and will gather momentum as the conference progresses. Even on questions which cannot be submitted to arbitration and where the conclusions must rest upon their merits rather than upon any binding agreement, publicity will create a public opinion that will in the end control. Reason will thus be substituted for force and a new spirit will regulate international relations.

VALUABLE CURIOS GIVEN TO CHAMBER

Coins of Many Nations Will be Part of Curio Corner in New Building

A valuable collection of curios from various parts of the world has been presented to the Glendale chamber of commerce by J. O. Corless, of 249 North Verdugo road, who, during the early years of his life, did his share of "globe trotting." One of these antiques is a cane made of cocoanut wood which was presented to Mr. Corless by a native of the West Indies.

Also among these curios is a valuable collection of old coins, some of them coming from oBrneo, England, Egypt, South America, Cuba, Germany, Mexico, Eastern and Western Africa, Panama, China and Greece. There is a United States 1 cent piece of 1797 and a half-cent of 1804, and there are also two California gold half-dollars.

Secretary Rhoades stated that the antiques would be given prominence in the "curio conrer" to be established in the new home of the chamber of commerce.

GARDNER'S WIFE SAYS HE'S CRAZY

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 17.—Claims that Roy Gardner, famour train bandit captured yesterday at Phoenix, Ariz., is mentally irresponsible, were made today by Dolly Gardner, his wife. Mrs. Gardner is working in the toy department of a San Francisco store.

"I knew years ago that was what I had to face," she said, commenting on the newest turn in her husband's career. "Roy didn't know what he was doing. He could never have thrown away his chance for freedom like this if he were in his right mind."

Slang of a Nation Indicates Somewhat Its Mental Attitude

The slang of a nation indicates something of its mental attitude says James W. Foley in his article on the editorial page this evening. And he picks out one expression "Getting By," and philosophies upon it. You will enjoy reading what he has to say about this.

Henry James finds that California has the highest death rate from automobiles of any of the states and cites incidents to show that reasonable caution could have prevented accidents.

Della Stewart writes on standardization and Dr. Frank Crane has something to say about lacemaking.

You will find editorials that are full of fire and right to the point. Take the one about an editorial in a German paper in New York and you have a sample. No beating about the bush, straight from the shoulder stuff and real Americanism.

We want you to read this editorial page every night. We want it to be a welcome visitor in your home. We want every member of the family to read it. You will find it 100 per cent American, 100 per cent progressive and 100 per cent for al lthat is good and noble.

NEAR TRAGEDY IS NEARLY ENACTED

Quite a number of the realty buyers of Glendale were given a severe shock a few days ago. In the show window of Seaman & Hancock, realtors of South Brand boulevard, was a sign which read like this:

"5-room house, bath and screen porch, hardwood floors, fireplace, one acre of ground, all kinds of fruit trees and berries, lawns, flowers, etc. All for $350."

A crowd gathered before the window and after a while the bravest of the bunch gathered sufficient courage to go inside and ask the particulars. He carried the $350 in bills in his hand and an expression on his face of mingled expectancy and doubt. After edging his way cautiously up to the official headquarters of Col Hancock he inquired as to the meaning of the sign in the window. In a few chosen words the bargain hunter was informed that every word on the card was true. Everything went well until the inquirer was informed that the home in question is located in West Elkton, Ohio.

Right then and there something happened. The back door was wide open, according to a prearranged program, and through this went Hancock, on the fly, closely followed by the angry real estate buyer and his many friends. When last seen Hancock was crossing the Edendale bridge over the Los Angeles river, and he was still going strong.

"A town where they will sell a 5-room home for $350 must surely be filled with "dead ones," said the would-be buyers. "Nothing like that in Glendale. We're a bunch of live wires here and there is probably as much difference in living conditions between Glendale and Elkton, Ohio, as there is between the prices of 5-room homes."

KIMLIN IMPROVES ENJOYS SUNSHINE

"I am feeling fine," said Councilman C. E. Kimlin Wednesday from his bed at the Glendale hospital and sanitarium where he ras been since an operation for appendicitis, "I feel perfectly well and able to be about but the doctor says I must stay here for a while so I guess I will.

"I certainly enjoy being out here on this porch where the breeze can blow in my face and the sunshine can reach a fellow. I never appreciated fresh air and sunshine so much until the doctor said I could have my bed wheeled out on the porch during the day."

A check for $263.05 was today presented to the Glendale Post of the American Legion of California, representing 25 per cent of the gross business of the special American Legion number of the Glendale Daily Press published Friday, November 11. This amount will be added to the building fund of Glendale Post No. 127. The money represented is the result of the loyalty of Glendale's business and professional men and women and the Glendale Daily Press assumes no credit for it. The advertisers who so readily responded to the call are alone to be praised for helping in the worthy cause.

THANKSGIVING NUMBER of GLENDALE DAILY PRESS for Thornycroft Disabled Ex-Service Men and Women

The Glendale Daily Press is going to publish a special Thanksgiving Day number for the benefit of the ex-service men and women who are patients in Thornycroft, the government's hospital in this city.

There are 51 boys there and two women. All of them are disabled and are away from home. As a result of their work for you and your country, their country—they are no longer able to enter competitive life. They must remain away from their homes and their loved ones until health is again given them by time and treatment.

The boys are going to have a recreation hall where they can spend happy hours. Mrs. Mary Schultz, superintendent of Thornycroft, is going to build the recreation hall and the proceeds of the Thanksgiving Number of the Glendale Daily Press will be used by the patients of Thornycroft to buy equipment for the hall.

The business and professional men and women of Glendale will be asked to give the same hearty support to the disabled men and women as they so freely gave to the fund for the new home of the Glendale Post of the American Legion.

The patients at Thornycroft have no means of making money to equip the hall, and they will appreciate your aid in giving them the means to help them forget and look to the present and the morrow.

ROBINSON RESIGNS CHAIRMAN BOARD LOCAL HOSPITAL

Dr. T. C. Young is Named to Succeed Him; Business Pressure is Reason

Spencer Robinson, who has been chairman of the board of directors of the Glendale Research hospital for the past six months, tendered his resignation as chairman last night, giving as a reason an incrasing pressure of business in the office of mayor of Glendale and also in his private affairs. This action took place at the regular meeting of the board in the office of the Roy L. Kent company on South Brand boulevard. Dr. T. C. Young was elected to fill the vacancy.

Mrs. Ida McMasters resigned as bookkeeper and Miss Bessie Mock was chosen to fill the vacancy. It was decided to make a few changes in the by-laws of the organization so that the operation of the hospital may be brought strictly up to date. One new feature decided upon was selecting an executive committee. Although the members of this committee have not been chosen it is definitely known that Dr. J. A. McNaughton will be chairman.

A preliminary report of the auditor shows that during the first six months of its life this instituion was operated at a profit, which is rather unusual for an organization of this kind. Various other matters of interest to the hospital organization were discussed.

FIFTY-FIFTY OIL CO. HAS OFFICE HERE

R. J. Smith, representing the Fifty-Fifty Oil and Land Syndicate, has opened offices in Glendale at 131 South Brand boulevard where he will be glad to meet the people who are interested in the syndicate' proposition at Long Beach.

Long Beach is rapidly forging ahead in oil and it is believed by experienced oil men that it will prove to be one of the state's permanent and profitable fields. In a double page announcement today, the Fifty-Fifty Oil and Land Syndicate tells its own story. Mr. Smith will make Glendale his home and will be glad to arrange for interested people to get to their property in Long Beach.

DEMOCRATS START TO OUST NEWBERRY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Democrats opened their battle to oust Senator Newberry, Michigan, from the senate, with Senator Pomerene, Ohio, declaring that the case involved the "honor and dignity" of the entire senate.

"The evidence clearly showed that $195,000 was spent to secure a seat in the senate for Senator Newberry," Pomerene said.

CITY COMMITTEE MET WITH COUNCIL

Present Plans for Industrial and Residential Zones, Fire District Discussed

Wednesday afternoon Mrs. H. E. Bartlett, Mrs. M. L. Tight and L. T. Rowley, of the zoning committee met with Councilmen Davis and Stephenson, Mayor Robinson, City Manager Reeves and Building Inspector Marek to discuss zoning of Glendale regarding commercial and industrial districts and the residential sections in regard to apartment houses and bungalow courts.

The committee and the council agreed to extend the commercial district on Colorado street from city limits to city limits and to include both sides of the street. Broadway is to be extended from city limits to city limits and Brand boulevard the same.

Central avenue will be extended as a commercial street north to include Wilson street. This will put that section of the city between Wilson and Colorado strets and Central and Glendale in the commercial zone. Both sides of all streets are included in this zone.

The industrial district was extended from Eulalia stret to San Fernado road, taking in all of the territory north of Eulalia street west to San Fernado road. The zoning of this section of the city into an industrial district will not bar the establishment of commercial houses in the district but will permit a factory and salesroom to occupy the same location and cooperate in their activities. The east side of San Fernando road will continue as a commercial district.

Glendale avenue from Lexington avenue to San Fernado road and Los Feliz boulevard from the city limits to Glendale boulevard were also included in the commercial district.

The committee decided not to take action on the zoning of the residential district regarding the erection of apartment houses and bungalow courts and agreed that the property owners of any section who wanted their dictrict closed to such enterprises could petition the council and set the limits of the district to be closed. The council would act on the petition and if there was no protest the district could be declared closed to the erection of apartment houses, duplex houses or bungalow courts.

The matter of extending fire district No. 1 was discussed informally and while no action was taken the committee felt that this district should be enlarged to cover the entire commercial and industrial districts of the city and that the erection of any building, except of masonry, be prohibited in this dictrict.

WOMAN DEMENTED IS SON'S STATEMENT OF MRS. JONES

Beatrice Jones, Who Attempted to Kill Herself in County Hospital

Mrs. Beatrice G. Jones who attempted suicide in a local hotel Wednesday afternoon has been taken to the county hospital. She was still unconscious when transferred but Health Officer Eckles said she could be moved.

When Mrs. Jones was found in her room at the hotel by police officers she was apparently near death from the effects of veronal. Dr. Eckles was called and administered antidotes. After several hours her condition improved and at times the woman regained consciousness. Two notes were found by police officers. One of the notes written on stationery of the Hotel Nadeau, Los Angeles, bore the inscription on the envelope: "To be opened in the event of illness or death by anyone finding me." This note placed the responsibility for her condition on her son, Leonard G. Husar, an attorney in Los Angeles.

The note said that she came to Los Angeles from San Francisco, penniless and that her son refused to care for her and had made her an outcast. That Mrs. Jones had contemplated taking her life before leaving San Francisco was evidenced by the other note found inside her clothing. This was written on stationery of the Hotel San Pablo, in Oakland, California and bore the inscription: "To be opened when I am found." It requested that her son be notified and gave his address in Los Angeles.

Chief of Police Martain communicated with the son Wednesday evening and told him of his mother's attempt and that she had placed the blame for her act on him. He said that his mother was demented and that the district attorney and the sheriff of Los Angeles county had been searching for her. They have a lunacy warrant for her, he stated. He was not surprised at the charges made against him by his mother, and said that he expected she would make such statements, due to her mental condition.

Papers found among the woman's effects indicate that she had been married the second time and divorced. There was a marriage certificate dated 1917 indicating that she had married a man named Jones. Another paper dated in 1920, notified her that action for divorce had been filed against her by the same man.

The woman appeared at the local hotel Tuesday night and asked to rent a room, saying that she was ill and had fainted on the street. She said she was afraid to make the return trip to Los Angeles and that she was expecting to meet a friend in Glendale on Wednesday. She secured a room and retired immediately. Later in the evening, the landlady inquired as to her condition and Mrs. Jones told her that she was suffering from a severe headache.

MUSIC CLUB STARTS DRIVE IN MEMBERS GET BIG ARTISTS

Four Ladies' Teams Are After Members, One Team Men Active

The announcement of Alice Gentle's appearance here on December 2 is lending great impetus to the membership campaign being launched to bring the membership of the club up to 600. The object of the club is to give monthly concerts to music lovers who care to support the splendid artist series being brought to Glendale. Santa Ana has an organization of 1100 members, Fresno of 1600 members and Glendale should have at least 1000 subscription members to support an organization which brings big artists to the city at a nominal sum, for members.

It is not the object of the club to make money on these attractions, but to have sufficient members insure the engagement of artists in advance, without having ticket sales. Many of the artists are booked months ahead, and a regular paying membership enables the club to secure the best talent. Many of the most prominent men and women are interesting themselves in the increase of membership and have given their services to the cause for the month of November. There are four ladies teams, headed by Mrs. E. W. Kinney, general membership chairman. They are:

TEAM 1—Mrs. Spencer Robinson, captain; Mrs. Clinton Booth, Mrs. L. N. Hagood, Mrs. Dora Gibson.

TEAM 2—Mrs. Calvin Whiting, captain; Mrs. R. D. Angelica, Mrs. Frank Arnold, Miss Mildred Pray.

TEAM 3—Mrs. Warren Roberts, captain; Mrs. Alexander Mitchell, Mrs. Emma Legge, Mrs. Helen Campbell.

TEAM 4—Miss Eva Daniels, captain; Mrs. R. A. Puffer.

MEN'S COMMITTEE—W. S. Rattray, captain; Arthur Dibbern, J. W. Francis Henry, Percy Priaulx, O. E. Von Oven, Calvin Whiting.

The men are planning to enlarge their committee to give the ladies some competition. Many new members have already been secured by this committee.

HACKENSCHMIDT READY FOR MONTANA

John (Young) Hackenschmidt announces that he will wrestle "Bull" Montana in Glendale at any time for two falls out of three, no time limit, providing the "Bool" agrees to wrestle clean and not use the strangle hold that is barred by the boxing and wrestling commission.

Hackenschmidt defeated "Butch" Metzetti of Los Angeles, at the Armistice Day celebration of the American Legion in Glendale and announces his willingness to meet the "Bool" in response to a challange from Montana made through the Glendale Daily Press after the Hackenschmidt-Metzetti match.

"I am willing to wrestle 'Bull' Montana or any other wrestler of my weight providing he will wrestle clean and not use holds that are barred by law. I am in good condition and am working out every day in Los Angeles," Hackenschmidt said when told that the "Bool" was looking for a match.

GARDNER TELLS WHERE HE MADE HIS MISTAKE

King of Bandits Says Wrong Man Got Run on Mail Train

EXPECTED OTHER MAN

Gives Limited Press Story of His Trip South From McNeill's Island

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 17.—Roy Gardner, "bandit of bandits," who met his Waterloo on a Santa Fe mail train here Wednesday because he would not shoot an unarmed man, wrote his story in his own whimsical way for the United Press today.

By ROY GARDNER
(Written for the United Press)

Women are good scouts. They can be trusted. My sister-in-law, Mrs. Martha Silda, has kept a secret for six weeks. I'd share a secret with a woman any day. I rode into the ranch yard of my sister-in-law and her husband at Gordon Valley, about 12 miles from Napa, Cal., six weeks ago. I wanted to see my little baby, Jean. It was about 8:30. Of course, they were surprised to see me. I gathered my sweet little girl into my arms and kissed and kissed her.

My wife had gone to San Francisco and I knew I would be taking too much of a chance if I went there, so I was forced to go on my way without seeing her. I sure wanted to, but I was too well-known there. I had dinner—with my little girl on my knee. Ten o'clock came and I knew I must go. I had left the motorcycle that I had stolen up north out at the gate. My sister-in-law asked me how I was traveling. I told her. She put up a lunch for me and I went out into the night. She held my little girl in her arms as she stood in the doorway of the ranch house, wishing me Godspeed. I will always think of that picture of the little one as the light of the old oil lamp fell on her golden curls.

If I had only made that haul I would never have entered this country again. I was going to send for the wife and kid and beat it to Buenos Aires. All my plans were made and they would never have caught me. I was too sure, I guess. If the man who I thought was going to be on the train had been there, they would never have got me. I'm not crabbing, though.

Life's just a big game and I lost when I thought I was holding a winning hand.

My wife thinks I'm crazy, eh? Well, that's a point, and about the only one we haven't agreed on in the last two years. You'll notice, though, that the first place I went after my escape was down there to see her and the kid. I'm not sorry for myself that I made the escape, but I am sorry for them. I just was so sure that I could do it, that's all.

I got my first help after my escape at McNeil's from someone in Raymond, Wash. There have been people almost the whole way who have helped me financially. There were a number who have known almost my every move.

My swim across the sound from McNeil's Island wasn't so hard, because I took it easy. I swim almost every stroke from the Australian crawl to a side stroke. There were a couple of thrilling moments when boats approached too close to be comfortable, and once I had to dive and swim under water quite a distance to avoid detection. I sure wish I were a respectable business man, living the simple life somewhere. There's nothing to this life, but the trouble is, you don't know it until you've tried it. A life of crime doesn't pay you, but you never find it out until too late. I am certain that I can raise $100,000 for my bond, and am putting through negotiations for it today.

Herman Inderlied, the mail clerk who got me, is a prince and I am glad that his little woman and child are going to be richer through my capture. I wish to God it were my wife and child who were going to gain, instead of suffering more. But, as I say—life's just a game and one man's misfortune is another's gain. They'd better keep a close watch on me, because if there's a chance in the world I'm going to take it. I've always shot square. I warned the deputies before that I would make a get-away if possible. I am warning them again.

Nothing's fairer than that, is it? And remember, too, that I have never killed a man and never will.

SHOCK KILLED MAN WHEN CAR HITS BOY

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 17.—So shocked was Fred T. Anderson, aged 30, when his automobile collided with a youth on a bicycle, that he fell in a dead faint at the wheel. The driverless car dashed madly down Figueroa street for two blocks, with the limp form in the front seat. Then it struck a telephone post. Jackson was dead when picked up. It is thought his head was crushed against the post. The boy on the wheel was not seriously hurt.

AMBROSINI WILL BE READY TO AWARD CONTRACTS SOON

Retaining Wall Work Will be Given Out This Week Ambrosini Says

Anthony Ambrosini reports that the contract will be let this week for the two retaining walls on Broadway and Glendale avenue of the basement for his hotel building at that point. This is being done to insure against any cave-in of the street. The other two retaining walls will be put in under the general contract for the hotel. That contract will be let immediately following the completion of the retaining walls mentioned, or as soon as the final plans, which are being made by the Roy L. Kent Co., are approved by the owner.

The building will measure 235 feet on Broadway and 229 feet on Glendale avenue. It will be a six-story structure of the class A type, and will contain a ballroom and theater for the entertainment of guests, which will be connected with a large dining room. Accommodations will be provided for from 300 to 400 guests.

On the first floor will be 17 stores, each with its separate basement, and an inside lobby for the hotel. While the building will be of fire-proof construction, it will be equipped with a sprinkling system as an additional fire protection. The exterior will be of pressed brick with terra cotta trim. The Kent Co. will plan and supervise, but Mr. Ambrosini himself will direct the erection, and construction will be pushed as rapidly as possible. He realizes, as does everyone else, that a hotel is Glendale's greatest need and is as anxious to see it materialize as are the rest of the citizens.

DWIGHT MOODY WAS HIS BIBLE TEACHER

J. H. Garnsey, 430 Vine street, led the very interesting prayer meeting at Central Christian church Wednesday night, and in an introductory speech said that his first Bible school teacher was Dwight L. Moody, then an awkward young mission worker in Chicago. He was so uncouth in language and stumbling in diction that the pastor of the church he belonged to requested him not to attempt to lead in prayer, said Mr. Garnsey. And this was the saintly man who became one of the most wonderful evengelists of the century and whose prayers in great meetings and conventions were so elcquent and heart-searching that it seemed they must touch the very throne of God.

Mr. Garnsey further said: "This aptly fits the subject of the prayer meeting, 'Progress in Prayer Life.'"

PRINCIPALS HAD SESSION TUESDAY

Principals of grade schools and Mrs. Dora Gibson representing the high school, met Tuesday afternoon at Intermediate for a conference relative to plans for Education Week, which is to be featured by a monster parade of all the school pupils in the city who will be conveyed in automobiles over all the principle thoroughfares of the city as a demonstration of the magnitude of the school population. Special visiting days for the various departments of the high school and for the grade schools will probably be announced in the calendar of the week. There will also be a mass meeting which will be addressed by the best speaker to be secured in Southern California.

If some men could only remember the answer to half the questions they ask they would have a good education.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but becomes weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.—Adv.

GARDNER MADE LAST MISTAKE AS FREE MAN BELIEVED

Local Authorities Sorry He Did Not Go Straight as He Promised Weeks Ago

"Roy Gardner was a fool for ever attempting to hold up the mail train in Phoenix," said City Manager Reeves in discussing Gardner, who was captured Wednesday morning after trying to rob a mail train in Phoenix.. Reeves said: "The majority of the people of the United States had a feeling of sympathy for him and had he gone straight, I believe he would have been let alone and possibly given another chance to make a man of himself.

"By pulling off this holdup he has demonstrated that he does not intend to go straight and I believe he will never have another opportunity to make a getaway. His attempt to hold up a mail train while a fugitive, indicates he is a dyed-in-the-wool thief and does not want to reform."

Chief of Police Martin said: "It just proves the old saying 'you can't get away with it.' They all fall and are caught sooner or later. Gardner had taken so many chances and gotten away with them that he thought he could not be captured and that is where he made his big mistake. If the law wants a man and wants him bad enough it gets him sooner or later and Gardner is no exception. He was a daring and nervy bandit but he took one chance too many and failed. I don't think he will get another chance to hold up a mail train very soon."

Former Chief of Police J. P. Lampert said: "Gardner has just proven that he does not want to reform. His promises that if given another chance he would go straight were empty. He is just like a lot of small boys I have met in my career as a police officer. They are willing to promise to go straight but when given the opportunity they fail and do the very thing over again. It will be a long time before Gardner has another chance to hold up a train."

Allen Released.—Earl V. Allen, arrested Tuesday night on complaint of a resident of Glendale that he was prowling about the neighborhood and peering into windows was released Wednesday by Chief of Police Martin, after an investigation. It was found that Allen came to Glendale to call on a young woman and was waiting about the streets waiting for her to complete a music lesson she was giving. Allen told Chief Martin that he had arrived in the city about 6 p. m. and that he and the girl had taken an automobile ride until time for her to give a music lesson. He said he had accompanied her to the house and was waiting for her when arrested.

"The people who talk without thinking and those that think without talking are always making each other tired.

OIL FAST BECOMING BIG FACTOR OVER IN LONG BEACH

Oil Experts Now Declare Long Beach Is Long Life Oil Section

With more than 50 derricks erected and approximately 35 wells in various stages of development, in addition to actual production, oil, the infant industry of Long Beach, has attracted the attention of the entire United States to this city as possessing the latest and potentially, at least, the wonder oil field, says the Long Beach Press.

The local field is recognized by the leading oil companies of the United States as possessing long life. This fact is revealed in the depth of the oil sands, which are claimed to be more than 400 feet deep. On sand alone is 286 feet in depth, according to drillers, and, with the other sands which overlie it, the total is secured.

The oil produced from Long Beach wells is in the neighborhood of 24 gravity, a very good grade of asphaltum base petroleum.

The gas pressure in the local field is also strong, one well, owned by the Shell company, having produced gas at the rate of 4,500,000 feet per 24-hour day.

Two Refineries

Two refineries are assured the city, the sites for each having been secured at an approximate cost of $175,000. Material for the construction of the refineries is ordered.

Oil men who have followed and taken part in the development of the great fields of the United States and Mexico, agree in the statement that it will not be long until Long Beach oil products are being shipped from the twin harbor to many parts of the globe.

The officials who have located the two refineries here, both settled on Long Beach as an ideal location for their plants, not only because the oil is here, but also due to the fact that harbor facilities and trans-oceanic steamships are available at all times.

The Long Beach oil field is also one of the most romantically situated fields in the United States, including as it does the great dome of Signal Hill, a hill 400 feet high and two miles from the beach, which was used by the Indians a century ago as a vantage point for their signal fires. From almost any derrick in the field which is as yet less than seven months old, an unequalled view of the mountains, the sea and the channel islands is obtainable.

Pipe Lines

The Standard Oil Co. is now constructing a pipe line to the great refinery at Wilmington, and it is reported that one of the biggest companies in the field may establish a refinery here to handle the products of its wells.

The fuel problem, which is always more or less of a bugbear, among industrial captains, is believed to have been solved in the discovery of the great oil sands in the local field.

It is estimated that at present more than 3500 men are employed in the local field, and it is predicted that 15,000 men will be employed in the local field within the next few months.

The Shell Co. of California has partially completed the first units of its $250,000 boiler and machine shops, to take care of its wells here. The Shell Co. has more than a dozen wells, either on production or rapidly approaching the hopeful stage. The Standard Oil Co. has five wells in this field, which it considers so important as to have established a separate operating unit here, under the name of the Long Beach Division. One other organization has more than 35 wells located and will drill them as rapidly as possible.

Among the big independent companies in the field are the General Petroleum, Petroleum Midway, United Oil, Prudential Pretroleum, Amalgamated Oil and similar concerns.

The first well in the local field was sunk by the Shell Co. of California. Shell officials were virtually jeered when they declared they would find oil here. The well struck the top sand, which is 103 feet in extent, early in June, and on the 23d day of that month, blew itself in with a flush production that ranged around 4500 barrels. The gas pressure was so heavy that the hole sanded up at once, the casing collapsed and the production was cut down to 350 barrels daily.

At the present time there are approximately 15 wells which are bordering on production. Like showings have been found in these wells, ranging from the extreme northwestern end of the field to the extreme southeastern, a distance of four miles.

The Long Beach or Signal Hill anticline, as it is best known, is declared by the greatest oil geologists of the state as being one of the most clearly defined yet found.

Truths in Epigram

The ass will carry his load, but not a double load; ride not a free horse to death. — Cervantes (1547-1616).

When you have shut your doors, and darkened your room, remember never to say that you are alone, for you are not alone; but God is within, and your genius is within—and what need have they of light to see what they are doing?—Epictetus (60-120).

SOVIETS AND THE CONFERENCE

It is impossible to deny that the question of Russia is a threat against the peace of the world. Naturally it will have to be considered at the conference.

Russia does not seem to have risen to the level to which other nations have been lifted by the experience of war. It still seems to have the ambition to conquer, and to seek to force hateful doctrines upon the rest of the nations. Its present leaders lay great stress on the desirability of a revolution. They want this to be world-wide, and always they stipulate that it shall be bloody.

The ignoble basis of Russian political activity is shown by the statement of an official of the third nationale, that the gathering will be for the purpose of further division of the spoils of war, and the creation of a common front against Russia.

It is much to be deplored that any people should be so blinded by prejudice as to be unable to give to others credit for honesty and high purpose. The failure of Russia to do so, merely reveals anew the character of the soviet oligarchy. Russia remains alien to the family of nations through its own fault alone. Under a different leadership it might now have been sitting at the council table, helping to solve problems, instead of itself being one of the gravest of the problems.

SHAKING OF HANDS

Once more arises a doctor to say that the American custom of shaking hands is dangerous. He wants people to turn to embracing as a less perilous substitute. There are some who will fail to be convinced.

A few years ago when the germ theory was a fear and not a scientific belief, people were counseled not to shake hands, lest they acquire microbes from the other party to the greeting. The menace of touching palms seized upon the timid so cruelly, that soon they were afraid to touch anything that another had touched. Whether they died of fright or outgrew their foolishness is not certain, but happily they have vanished.

This time the danger of the handshake is attributed to its effects on the nerves. That is to say, a man who is required to shake the hands of thousands of people is making an overdraft on his physical resources. There is reasonableness in this view. A president, for example ought to be protected against having his arm pumped off and his nerves shattered in the process.

Doubtless the ordinary American will continue to shake the hand of the friend he meets, and in no case is it likely the operation will kill or cripple either. But if the ordinary American seeks to hug the friend, somebody is going to get killed or crippled on the spot.

Of course there is the handshaker who is a common nuisance because he insists upon the ceremony at every opportunity. The best treatment is to dodge him. He stands on the intellectual level of the women who kiss each other whenever they meet.

THE CROSSROADS SHOOLHOUSE

Ambassador Harvey delivered an address in London the other day free from the faults that have marked most of his recent public utterances. In it he said: "A schoolhouse at a crossroads is more potent ultimately than a dreadnaught on the seas."

There always has been a theory to this general effect. While Americans have thought they adhered to it, they have, in instances, neglected the school, but for the perfection of the battleship have poured out millions without stint. There is an appreciable wave of sentiment now holding that the battleship too long has been played as a favorite.

The school is vital. In an emergency the battleship might be important also. But if there were to be an increase of schools everywhere, the battleship might cease in the end to be a utility. This would permit the diversion of funds to education and to physical betterments.

Mr. Harvey is welcome to stand up and extol education just as often as he likes. He is on safe ground. He is in no danger of offending anybody.

THE SORDID VIEW

Many correspondents of repute are watching proceedings at the conference. This is a matter for congratulation. The world wants to know not alone the details, but is glad to have the interpretation that may be given by men and women of proved intellectual standing. Even thus early these correspondents are shown not to be in agreement.

It is comforting to believe, and millions of men and women do believe, that the conference was called for exactly the high purpose named in the call; that it has for its object the preservation of pacific relations among the nations; the lessening of the burdens of preparedness; ultimately the extinction of the war spirit.

That is it is due to sordid aims, that it is devoid of sentiment or of lofty inspiration, is a doctrine that has been advanced from respectable source. It is a doctrine that could not be accepted even with regret. It is repugnant to the point of being noxious. It is the flouting of the desire that thrills uncounted millions of hearts. To state that war is to cease for a time because for the present, financiers do not find it profitable to themsleves, verges close to insulting human intelligence.

Groups of financiers do have great potency. They are able to send prices up or down. They are able to harness the law of supply and demand, as engineers harness the mountain torrent. But that they can drive nations to war whenever the notion seizes them, is absurd. This "dumb, driven cattle" role is obsolete.

If nations resolve, each, to refrain from aggression, and refer disputes to an international tribunal, there could be no more occasion for war.

The conference was in answer to the demand of men and women of civilization and culture. It was a demand so general and so pronounced, that it could not be ignored. Statesmen all over the world heard it, and recognized it as something that must be heeded.

The conference is called to give form and substance to the common belief. It is not called at the behest of financiers. Such men make money out of whatever condition confronts them, but if they were to prefer a condition of war, they would constitute a helpless minority.

A WORD FROM GERMANY

"We, as Americans, opposed the war in which honest neutrality should have been our duty, and the office of a righteous arbitrator our highest aim. . . Our youth was sent to the battlefields without cause; the flower of life was sacrificed uselessly."

There is more of this. It is from the Armistice day editorial of the New York Staats Zeitung.

Perhaps there is no utility in threshing over old straw. Even to denounce this utterance of the German paper as slanderous and untrue hardly is necessary. That it deserves both characterizations any reader knows.

When an editor employs such language, it is presumption most gross for him to say "our youth," seeking to convey the impression that he writes as an American. He is writing as a man alien to every American sentiment and American institution.

Our youth was not sent to the battlefield without cause. There was more than ample cause. The peace that followed has not been complete and perfect, yet the fruits of sacrifice may yet sweeten human existence.

Out of the war that the Staats Zeitung mourns because Germany was not permitted to win, has sprung world-wide detestation of armed conflict. Out of it is likely to come an era of peace in the benefits of which every nation shall participate.

REWARDS OF CRIME

A few years ago the wife of a bank burglar, herself a member of the guild of crooks, wrote a series of articles largely autobiographical. In it she told of various exploits of the gang, and described the imposing amount of booty. Then she would show how the stolen money was dissipated, and this would lead her to close each chapter with the exclamation "Crime does not pay!"

While this is true, the effect of the articles must have been bad. They made the methods of operation clear to any individual having a bent towards a life of outlawry. That was all the individual cared to know. Doubtless, each thought that having made the haul, he would avoid the folly of wasting it. None seems to have lived up to such an ideal. Stolen money is not a prize but an incumbrance.

Recently two young men robbed a Pasadena picture house of $900. Even if not caught, they will receive no benefit. Better for them, if this is an early offense, that they be caught. If they should be permitted to pursue the career thus begun, soon or late the prison doors will shut them in.

"Rufus Wallingford" was created by a writer of fiction, apparently for the purpose of educating readers to the lighter and more genteel activities of crime. That the plan succeeded the police records everywhere seem to indicate. Aspirants have learned to be criminals, but the secret of profiting by their gains baffles them and always will.

LACEMAKING

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Every one who has spent a vacation in Switzerland has noticed the demure little girls who sit outside the shop on the Lucerne quays everlastingly embroidering at a frame.

They are making lace.

Most of them come from the villages around Saint-Gall.

They represent one of those peculiar industries that pertain to a particular town or province, just as one place will be noted for its wood-carving, another for pipe-making and the like.

Their system of lacemaking is called "Kloeppel," the best specimens of which bear very favorable comparison with the Irish, Valenciennes and Brussels products.

The most popular is the Brussels lace of Appenzell. It is exported on a large scale and almost every woman who fancies nice things enriches her wardrobe while in Switzerland with an Appanzell flounce—scarf or collar.

The industry, according to the London Daily Mail, was introduced into Switzerland by a Huguenot refugee from France, who settled in the neighborhood of Saint-Gall about 200 years ago. This is a quaint cathedral city near the lake of Constance.

At first it was a home industry. In the eighteenth century it became very important and presently its reputation spread beyond Switzerland.

Like Brussels lace, it is always embroidered on fine gauze and the Brussels designs were imported into Switzerland. There is little to distinguish the real Brussels from that of Appenzell for the designs and forms are the same.

Swiss Kloeppel lace is made in French Switzerland and in the Lauterbrunnen valley. Elaborate measures for the encouragement of the industry have been taken and special committees have been formed to supervise the production.

Kloeppel lace is such that a traveller can obtain any special design he fancies. These women and girls are always ready to work from a rough sketch and the results so achieved are as remarkable for their truth and accuracy as are the efforts of the Swiss carvers in executing wooden models of sporting dogs sent to them by the Britishers back in the 'nineties.

Even in these times of financial upset, with money exchange out of joint, it is possible to buy specimens of this magnificent lace at a very reasonable price in the little shops and towns of Switzerland.

The women workers come from their home towns in the summer to Lucerne and other resort places, do a good stroke of advertising by their quaint appearance, execute special commissions and make not a little money.

The Swiss are a very industrious and thrifty people and lacemaking ranks with wood-carving as one of the oldest of the fine arts there practised commercially.

THE LISTENING POST

The slang of a nation indicates something of its mental attitude.

Or of the mental attitude of a part of it.

Just as the weeds in a field indicate the nature of its culture.

Or the lack of it.

* * *

We had better English week a little while ago.

A good thing.

Because there is plenty of good English.

Not used.

And we ought to use it.

To keep the language and ourselves from getting musty.

* * *

But there is slang that has another objection, apart from the mere vulgarity of it.

And that is the sort that reflects a decadent moral or spiritual sense.

And we shall write a Listening Post about one expression only.

"Getting by."

* * *

A man has a theater.

Or a circus or whatever it may be.

With an admission charge.

And a man at the door.

And while the man is not looking, you pass by him unnoticed.

Without any ticket.

* * *

You have paid no admission charge.

You passed in unnoticed without paying.

You "got by."

Nobody saw you.

* * *

Of course, you did not swindle the doorkeeper.

Or the theater.

You swindled yourself.

And if you do not know that now you will after while.

* * *

You would not do such a thing, of course.

This Listening Post knows that.

We merely say "you" for the sake of the application.

And if it will please you better, we will say "I."

Making the application personal.

* * *

And you are a workman, perhaps.

Or I am.

As we all are or ought to be.

Having something to do.

A pair of shoes to make or a ditch to dig or a column of figures to reckon or a bit of goods to sell.

* * *

And in the course of our work we slight something we should do exactly.

Nobody knows it.

It goes into the great limbo of things half-done.

Or poorly done.

And "we get by" with it.

* * *

And so we continue along a pathway that leads to destruction.

We keep on "getting by" with slighted work.

Obligations disregarded.

Pledges not kept.

And we grow slipshod and slack in industry.

And moral sense at the same time.

* * *

And one day we find that we have ceased to "get by."

The Boss smells a mouse.

Things are not going right.

And he shakes up things generally.

He opens the door.

And you "get by" for the last time.

* * *

There are two general classes of workmen.

Those who have pride in their work.

And those who merely "get by."

One survives.

The other does not.

* * *

The workman with pride in his work does not seek to "get by."

He seeks to put all the spirit and energy and conscience he has into his work.

The other class of workmen merely watch the clock.

Wait for payday.

"Get by."

* * *

What do you do?

Do you put all the spirit you have into your work?

Or merely enough to "get by" with.

* * *

It's none of my business, of course.

But it is a lot of your business.

For if you go out sometimes and mingle with the great army of the disappointed, unfit and unsuccessful, you will find many who began by seeking merely to "get by."

SONGS OF THE POETS

Phyllis and Corydon—By Arthur Colton (1868)

Phillis took a red rose from the tangles of her hair—
Time, the Golden Age; the place, Arcadia, anywhere.—

Phillis laughed, the saucy jade: "Sir Shepherd, wilt have this,
Or—"Bashful god of skipping lambs and oaten reeds—"a kiss?"

Bethink thee, gentle Corydon! A rose lasts all night long,
A kiss but slips from off your lips, like a thrush's evening song.

A kiss that goes, where no one knows! A rose, a crimson rose!
Corydon made his choice and took—Well, which do you suppose?

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

THE PEOPLE MUST BE HEARD

[New York World]

In the United States, the key to disarmament and the place of the conference, there is especial need that the people shall, in Senator Borah's words, "make their wishes known and their opinions felt." "There can be no relief from taxes, no relief from expenditure and no relief from war except through disarmament." If the people wish that relief, let them plainly say so—now.

NOT EXCITED BY THAT BAIT

[Albany Journal]

To the credit of womanhood stands the fact that in the city of New York there wasn't response to Miss Jeannette Rankin's call for a mass meeting of unemployed women. At the appointed time and place, which were, respectively, Saturday afternoon and Union Square, there were present Miss Rankin, Rose Schneidermann, president of the Women's Trade Union league; Anna Cohen, a representative of the needle trades, and a woman whom Miss Rankin introduced as chairman, but named only with the initials E. B. L., and who gave about herself the information that for twelve years she had been engaged in welfare work and up to a few months ago had been earning a salary of several thousand dollars a year. The audience, said the New York Herald, was "composed mostly of men—jobless ones, too—a few welfare workers, a political district leader or two, and policemen who anticipated something of a riot." But disorder did not develop.

Some speeches were made and the usual resolutions were adopted.

Presumably the unemployed women upon whom Miss Rankin had relied for the presentation of a spectacle that would be a counterpart to the one "staged" by Urbain Ledoux, were restrained by their self-respect from lending themselves for such purpose. Also, they may have been too busy in their search for employment. Any way they remained, throughout the meeting, conspicuous by their absence.

However, Miss Rankin announced that on next Saturday afternoon "another" meeting of unemployed women would be held at the same place.

Then there will be opportunity for more speech-making and adoption of resolutions. But such sensational methods do not produce results.

AN HONOR YET TO COME

[Watchman Examiner]

It is said that the degree of doctor of medicine has been conferred upon General Ludendorff by a German university, "because he saved so many lives during the war." The Pittsburgh Christian Advocate remarks somewhat caustically that the Noble Peace Prize has not yet been offered to him.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA M. STEWART

Standardization is the order of the day. Hitherto, it has not seemed feasible to standardize husbands, but an eastern woman has taken the first step toward such an end by demanding the renumeration of a dollar a day for the alienation of her spouse's affections.

Of course we have heard of dollar a year men. But they were not necessarily husbands. Any perfectly good husband ought to be worth at least a dollar a day. If he be the variety that helps with the cooking and occasionally washes the dishes and tends baby, it would seem as if in these days of inflated prices he might be worth some more—say a dollar-fifty or so. If such services were priced according to the wage demands of household help at the present, they would command still more.

But even so, standardization might be accomplished. Thus would be put to an end the lenghty court actions to determine a husband's price or value. There are those who think that a husband who, after right treatment, absconds, whatever the circumstances of his leaving, is not worth even a dollar a day—or a year.

By all means let the good work go on. Standardization of husbands may simplify domestic difficulties greatly. Who can tell?

Comment on the News

By HENRY JAMES

California has the highest death rate from automobiles of any of the states. In a large proportion of fatalities, the verdict of the coroner is that of "unavoidable accident." The verdict usually is wrong. It may be possible, however, that the driver of the machine was blameless. So far as he was concerned the outcome may have been unavoidable. This verdict does not cover the whole situation.

Recently an aged woman was killed when an automobile struck her. She had stepped directly in front of an oncoming machine. The driver could not prevent the natural result. The coroner listed the melancholy affair among things unavoidable. By the exercise of reasonable caution it could have been avoided.

When a driver tries to cross the railroad just ahead of a train, the engineer is unable to avoid accident, but the driver might have avoided it by the mere exercise of common sense.

Drivers and pedestrians both, get themselves into positions where escape from tragedy is impossible. This does not render fair or adequate the explanation "unavoidable."

Probably nine out of ten of the accidents that constitute the sorry record of California have been due to gross and often criminal carelessness. The matter is not helped in the least by the attempt to shove responsibility on providence.

Much is being said about the failure of China to meet promptly a debt of a few millions.

Probably there is no bad intent on the part of China, and no bankruptcy, but the mere effort of some sharp coterie to put that country in bad standing.

Not long ago Congressman Blanton of Texas narrowly escaped expulsion from the house. He had caused publication in the Record of matter that was indecent and unfit.

Since then Senator Watson of Georgia has brought venomous charges against the American army, has failed to cite a shadow of proof, and has defied his colleagues to discipline him.

The senate has a right to pass on the qualificitions of its own members. If it shall fail to expel Watson it must share in some part the odium he has earned.

The offending of Watson is far more gross than that of Blanton.

It seems singular now to read of a case of yellow fever in New Orleans. The case came by ship and local conditions were in no manner responsible for it. There will be no scare, and probably not another victim.

Not many years ago the appearance of yellow fever in the south was the signal for panic. It was the most dreaded of visitants. When it came there was virtual certainty that it would sweep a wide area, slaying its thousands.

During a yellow fever siege the people of the north were wont to send such help as they could, for where the terror reigned, ordinary authority vanished, business ceased, and chaos followed. It was not uncommon for volunteer charity workers to find entire families dead in the home. Fright reached such a pitch that none would bury the fallen.

Science triumphed over yellow fever. That has been one of the greatest victories of science for humanity.

When the people of southern California read of the cold and snow of other sections, they are moved to pity.

It is true that railroad fare is a little high now, but there are several good roads leading to this coast, and comfort is worth the price.

Perhaps it is well to add that many who buy round trip tickets find that they have no use for the return coupon, preferring to live happy ever after.

Do You Know That—

American asphalt pavements consist chiefly of sand and pulverized limestone. The asphalt itself serves merely as a binder to hold the other materials together. In Europe asphalt pavements are generally made of asphaltic limestone, or "rock asphalt," consisting of limestone naturally mixed with asphalt.

ROUGH RIDIN' MULE
SIKESTON, Mo., Nov. 17.—Rather mean hospitality, the strangers called it, when Deputy Sheriffs Tom Scott and Lee Morrow arrested them and took their "mule," after the two strangers had invited the officers to have a little "nip." It was a matter of "compensating the good Samaritans" for the proffered ride in the official car, that the "nip" was offered. They were "hot-footing" it away from here when the officers "asked them to ride."

The dismissal came when the woman refused to appear as a witness against Willis. John P. Keller, formerly a prominent business man of Chicago, who came out to California six months ago and located in La Crescenta, has decided to make Glendale his home. He recently bought, through the A. J. Lucas real estate agency, 309 South Brand, Dr. Eble's lot, 70x150 feet, at the corner of Stocker and Campbell. John Chassere, a contractor who recently located in Glendale, has drawn the plans and will build for Mr. Keller a strictly modern home of 5 rooms and den, to cost $6000 or more. Mr. Chassere has bought three large lots on Justin avenue in the Grand View district, and will build six, possibly 10, bungalows for rental purposes, and he will also finish Jack Lucas' home at 1039 Justin. Another recent sale by Mr. Lucas was John Kiefer's 1-2 acre lot at the corner of Justin avenue and Fourth street to William A. Tice of the Hjorth Construction Co. Mr. Tice is living in the 3-room house that was already on the lot but contemplates erecting other buildings on the tract.

EASTERN STAR HELD FINE BANQUET

A very jolly affair was the banquet given Wednesday night at the Casa Verdugo cafe by past matrons and patrons of Glen Eyrie Chapter, O. E. S., in honor of the present worthy matron and patron, and a vote was taken to make it an annual affair.

It was a five-course feast which had been arranged by a committee of which Mrs. Daniel Campbell was chairman and which included Miss Cora Hickman, Mrs. Sallie Braden, E. U. Emery and A. W. Tower. The table was beautifully decorated with baby chrysanthemums and at each plate was a hand-painted place card that indicated the guest by some characteristic of dress or action, which made them souvenirs to be treasured.

Miss Hickman was presented by Mrs. Campbell as first matron, and therefore mother, of the chapter, and asked to serve as toastmistress for the evening, an office which she filled with credit to herself and satisfaction to the guests. In turn she called upon each past matron and patron to tell of some amusing incident of his or her term of office.

Mrs. Earl R. Naudain, worthy matron, and W. W. Worley, worthy patron, were guests of honor, and in appreciation of the sacrifices which their respective better halves have been called upon to make in consequence of the duties these officers have performed, Mrs. Worley was presented by Mrs. Campbell with a bouquet of asters in a variety of colors with an appropriate speech, and to Mr. Naudain went a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums, both recipients making elaborate acknowledgements.

After Miss Hickman had concluded her work as toastmistress, the gavel was then surrendered to Mrs. Campbell, who presented her with a beautiful bouquet of lavender asters, which she acknowleded in characteristic fashion.

The husbands and wives of matrons and patrons who have served, Mrs. James Wyvell, Mrs. David Crofton, Mr. E R. Naudain and Mrs. Josephine Bryant, each received some souvenir in reconition of their loyal support of the chapter during the official term.

Invitations had been sent to a number who were unable to be present, the list including George U. Moyse, A. W. Tower, Miss Fredonia Borthick, Miss Della Echols, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Beamon, Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Fraley, Mrs. Albright of El Centro.

Those present were Miss Cora Hickman, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Naudain, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Worley, Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Bryant, Mrs. Adelaide Imler, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Campbell, Mrs. Mary Ogden Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. James Wyvell, Robert M. Grumbling, Mr. and Mrs. David Crofton, Mr. and Mrs. E. U. Emery, Mrs. Sallie Campbell Braden and Mrs. A. W. Tower.

The program opened with the singing of the last verse of "America," and inclosing all joined hands and sang "Auld Lang Syne."

The Wednesday Club met at the home of Mrs. Charles Perkins on West Elk avenue. The house was attractively decorated with roses. Luncheon was served at noon, after which the ladies spent an enjoyable afternoon sewing.

The guests included Mrs. Charles H. Sanders, Mrs. Frank Hester, Mrs. H. Clotworthy, Miss Clara Ringert, Mrs. William Gibson, Mrs. Leo Freshman, Mrs. G. D. Roach, Mrs. Alma Nash, Mrs. Charles Glover and Mrs. J. F. Hearnshaw.

WAR MOTHERS AT MRS. SHERWOOD'S HOME

The American War Mothers met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. J. B. Sherwood, 357 West Broadway. It was decided at this meeting that the next one will be held on December 14, which will be the last one until after the holidays, at which time the election of permanent officers will take place. Mrs. Samuel Dick, 309 North Louise street, will be hostess.

During the afternoon the ladies tacked two comforters, as well as doing other sewing. Each member took her own lunch and hot soup and coffee were furnished by the hostess.

MISS CAMPBELL TELLS OF RED CROSS WORK

Wednesday night, the auditorium at Glendale high school was ablaze with light, which made the Stars and Stripes and the flag of the Red Cross look all the more glorious.

Miss Campbell, of Los Angeles, speaker of the evening, addressed a small but attentive audience, telling of her work in West Virginia during the war, a story that was most instructive. O. E. Von Oven led in community singing, with Mrs. Wright at the piano.

Mrs. H. E. Bartlett chairman of the Glendale chapter of the Red Cross, spoke in behalf of the roll call, and Mrs. C. E. Peckham, director of the roll call, told of the wonderful returns she is receiving at headquarters, the Glendale branch of the Los Angeles Trust and Savings Bank, on North Brand boulevard.

WOMEN'S SOCIETIES IN ALL-DAY MEETING

The monthly all-day meeting of all the women's societies of the Glendale Presbyterian church was held Tuesday, with about 70 ladies in attendance. In the morning, the "pastor's aid" had charge and sewing was done for the missionary boxes, and work on comforters.

At noon a luncheon was served and in the afternoon a missionary program was put on, Rev. Louis Tinning conducting the devotional exercises.

The speaker of the afternoon was Miss Belle Robinson, who gave an interesting talk on her work in West Virginia. Mrs. Thompson, one of the society members, gave a fine talk on Siam.

DANCE FOR VETERANS WAS GREAT SUCCESS

The dance given Wednesday night for the disabled war veterans, at the American Legion hall, 610 East Broadway, proved a huge success, both financially and socially.

About 75 couples turned out and enjoyed an evening of dancing to "jazz" music, furnished by the orchestra of Post No. 8, American Legion. This dance was the third given by the disabled veterans, but was the first by Post No. 8. The Thornycroft boys in charge were Messrs. Malcolm, Wells, Mitchell and Robinson.

STUDENT BODY NINTH REGULAR MEET

The ninth regular meeting of the cabinet of the Glendale high student body was held Wednesday afternoon, and an election committee was appointed, consisting of Misses Packer, Peart and Peters and Mr. Holland. The cabinet voted to hold an election Friday, following the assembly to be held on that day, the polls to be opened immediately following the assembly and remain open until 4 p.m.

The cabinet also voted to refund to each student leaving school before February, one-half of the price paid for a student body ticket, and to sell tickets to students who come in after the first of February at half price.

HIGH SCHOOL P.-T. A. MET ON WEDNESDAY

Th monthly meeting of the high school Parent-Teacher Association, which was held Wednesday afternoon in the cafeteria of the school, with Mrs. Wyman presiding, was of unusual interest because of the discussion which developed relative to local matters.

Miss Margery Yarick was given an opportunity to present an appeal for parental support of the trade tickets which are being put out by the school paper, "The Explosion." These, she explained, are credit checks on the merchants in whose names they are issued. They are sold for 23 cents each but are good for 25 cents worth of merchandise and therefore enable the holder to save 10 per cent on purchases. On the amount of these tickets sold will depend the revenues of "The Explosion," the news medium of the school, and also the medium through which its students secure training in newspaper work. The expense of issuing this paper, which is distributed to the 1200 students in the school on their student body tickets, exceeds the sum allotted it by the school budget, and therefore it must make it up in advertising patronage, and the trade tickets have been adopted as the method which will bring the largest return to both the advertiser and the paper. She urged every member present to help the school paper by buying tickets, and made her plea in a very straightforward, effective way, without hesitation or embarrassment.

Mr. Lockwood, as head of the membership drive, reported an enrollment of 310 to date with prospects of going over the top with 100 per cent membership in the near future. On motion of Mrs. L. T. Rowley the association voted to give $100 to the school as soon as the 100 per cent had been secured, the money to be used for financing a school band.

Mrs. W. W. Stofft then presented a resolution signed by herself, Mrs. A. A. Barton and Mrs. F. B. Moore, pledging the association to cooperate with the high school authorities in overcoming lawlessness among pupils and restoring them to a recognition of the ethical rights of other people. The resolution was not worded as here reported, but was modified by amendment until its sentiment expressed the desire of the association to ocoperate with the school in correction, rather than punishment, and disgrace, which might injure a boy or girl for life.

Principal Moyse was called upon, and told of the careless habits of students forgetting where they left their belongings and leaping to the conclusion that they had been stolen, when in reality they had been picked up and put in the lost-and-found department. Another bad habit mentioned was the proneness of the student who had forgotten to bring her gym shoes with her to help herself to those of another student if they chanced to be handy, without knowing to whom they belonged or where to return them, thus leading to loss of property and annoyance.

The loss of money through the rifling of lockers was mentioned, and in some cases could be traced, Mr. Moyse said, to outside boys and not students of the school, who sneaked into the gym while games were in progress and went through the lockers without being detected. This would not account for all of the losses complained of, he said.

Mrs. Barton, in the discussion which followed, declared the problem is largely up to the mothers, who should more carefully train their children to respect the property right of others. She also thought, where suspicion had been directed toward any child, the matter should be thoroughly sifted to determine guilt or innocence as otherwise a child might be under stigma for years through unjust suspicion.

Mr. Lockwood insisted that when a child comes home with property or money in excess of what the parent has given him, the source of the surplus should be rigidly investigated. He mentioned one boy who had calmly disconnected and walked off with one of the school telephones because he desired to use it in experiments he was making.

Mrs. J. R. White said she thought the trouble might originate in the desire to wear as good clothes or to have as many amusements as certain other students, and she held that parents should keep their children simply dressed and limit their expenses for amusements and pocket money that they may not become the object of envy and temptation for others.

JUVENILE MUSIC CLUB IN SESSION

A meeting of the Juvenile Auxiliary of the Glendale Music Club was held at Intermediate school last Saturday afternoon, at which the directors, Miss Pray, Mrs. Kent and Mrs. Jackson, were present.

It was called to order by the president, little Susie Smith, and after a short business session, a patriotic program was presented. Katherine Sonntag gave a history of "Le Marsellaise"; Myla Chapman a history of "The Star-Spangled Banner"; Helen White whistled "In Poppyland," Mrs. White playing her accompaniment; Rebecca Brant played "At Dawning," by Cadman; the children then sang in unison, "The Star-Spangled Banner, "Le Marsellaise," "Over There," "Smiles," "Keep the Home Fires Burining," "Joan of Arc" and "The Long, Long Trail."

The next meeting will be held at Intermediate the second Saturday in December.

From a girl's point of view, to be able to wear small shoes is a great feat.
